"This is a degree that equips you to be a leader with skills to catalyze a movement based on a solid missiological theology of the New Testament. We're not only concerned about what you know, but about who you are and what you do; three motivators for a passion to declare God's glory to the nations."

What Our Expert Faculty are Saying

The idea of having a fully accredited online degree focusing on movements and movement dynamics has been a long-term dream. Here is one that is led by very thoughtful practitioners in missional ecclesiology. What's not to like?

Alan Hirsch, Author and Founder of Movement Leaders Collective and Forge Missional Training Network

Ephesiology could prove to be a trendsetter which fills an important gap for many organizations as the future of missiological education may likely involve the development and curation of online resources and courses. I commend you for your vision and creativity.

It is presented in an accessible format and an engaging style, equipping everyday leaders and every leader to be able to grow in particular areas, as well as generally in the character and competency of leadership and to become more Christ-like.

Rich Robinson, Director of CREO Ventures

Ephesiology Master Classes fills a gap that no group or no idea is filling. I love the idea of an academically rigorous and immensely practical digital equipping of leaders toward kingdom ministry. That's a powerful combination.
